FRIDAY EVENING, AUG. 9, 1901.

A REAR STORY. An old Indian named Phillip Adolph was going on foot across the mountains to visit relatives in Carson, B. C., and was accompanied by his son and a cur dog. The latter treed a silver tip bear of unusual size, and the Indian wanted its hide and incidentally some bear steak. But his rifle was in his tepce, steak. But bis rifle was in his tepee, four miles away. Now bruin will stay up a tree so long as a dog sits at the bottom. So Phillip tried to persuade his son to return for the rifle while he and the dog kept watch. But the boy was afraid. Neither would he remain on guard while the senior Siwash went for his gun. Finally the old Indian lost all patience, and, seizing the boy, bound him the base of the tree with both arms clasping it and left him there.

When the bear attempted to descend the boy's screams drove him back up the boy's screams drove him back up the tree and there he remained for two hours until the Indian returned with his ritle, released his son and laid in supply of bear meat.

FEARED LYNCHING.—Percy Levy, a respectable colored man living a mile from Terry, Miss., committed suicide Wednesday night through fear of lynching. A young white woman was assaulted by a negro at Terry last Saburday, and the white men of the neighborhood have been searching everywhere for the assailant, but without success. Whether Levy was the saisaint it is impossible to tell now, but he became terrified, fearing that the lynchers were in pursuit of him. He yound not be induced to leave his house but sat there with a pistol in his hand or lying by his side when he slept. He became crazy with fear, and finelly could not sleep. Wednesday night a shot was heard by his wife, who fled to her father's house. A party returning found Levy dead in bed, with a shullet through his heart, and the pistol clutched in his hand. The bedding was on fire from the pistol shot. Not a suspicion pointed to Levy, as he bor an excellent reputation.
